Empower your strategy with Apple devices as-a-Service

It shouldn't come as a surprise that mobile devices are vital for boosting productivity and customer contact, regardless of where employees choose to work. But there's more to them. Catering to the preferences of an increasingly mobile-minded workforce has become essential to any business strategy. Apple is rapidly becoming the go-to-brand for all things mobile. With Apple Financial Services, you can now cost-efficiently add powerful mobile Apple devices to your corporate IT.

Optimising productivity and security

Apple has carved a name for itself for developing mobile solutions that are as reliable as they are secure. Its innovating hardware is designed specifically to deliver results through unmatched performance. At the same time, Apple's signature approach to mobile security keeps your data safe from online threats. Combined with the intuitive user experience of iOS and macOS, Apple devices are firmly established as industry leading solutions for a wide audience.

The right strategy for the war on talent

To an increasing number of employees, mobile devices are an integral part of everyday life. Millennials and generation Z in particular are accustomed to mobile tech and they possess valuable skills to use it for information and productivity purposes. It is only natural to them that work environments facilitate those same means. As such, leveraging these generation's technological affinity is not only a smart move, but critical in making your organisation future-proof and winning the war on talent. With Apple Financial Services, stimulating your employer branding is easier than ever before.

Cost-efficient deployment of Apple devices

Through Apple Financial Services, organisations are able to provide their employees with Apple mobile devices for a fixed monthly fee. This fee is partially based on the relatively high residual value of Apple devices, making this service a very cost-efficient mobility solution. Apple Financial Services ends significant IT-investments upfront, making it more accessible for organisations to incorporate Apple's trademarked performance and security into their IT strategy, even on a large scale.
